

Marine Police

Managing; Enforcing; Protecting in Tasmania Waters

The maritime environment is constantly evolving, and the Marine division of Tasmania Police has to be constantly vigilant and aware of the changes.

Craig Jackman has been stationed at Marine and Rescue Headquarters for 16 years and seen changes in fisheries habitats, fishing activities and legislation.

This talk will discuss what is involved in fisheries enforcement as well as the vital role Rescue Services has in Tasmania. Craig will talk about the challenges our marine environment faces, the difficulties with bio security for our state and where the fisheries are headed in the future.

Bring your lunch and listen to a fascinating illustrated talk

12 -1pm 5th April 2011
Royal Society Room
Tasmanian Museum and Art Gallery